Century-Old Arch Barn Destroyed

MOUNTAINHOME — A barn fire at 1:45 a.m. yesterday destroyed the original Jacob Price homestead barn in Mountainhome.

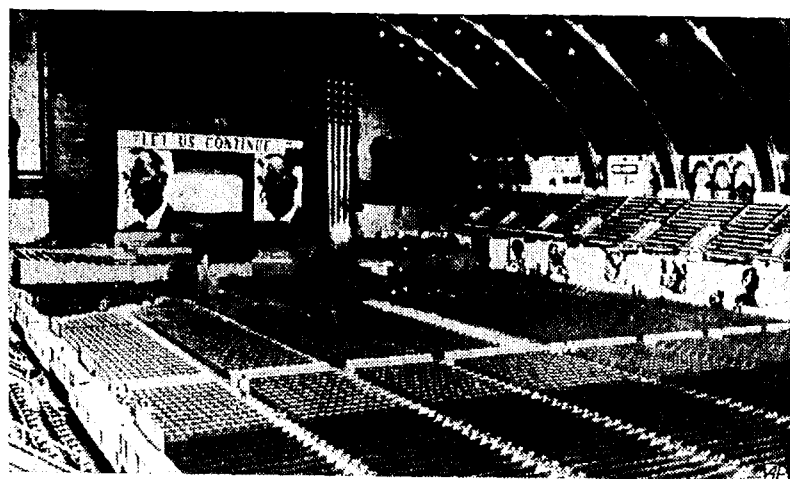

Barrett Twp. Volunteers rushed to the scene, but the barn was beyond saving. They wet down the surrounding ground.

The barn was owned by Mrs. Paul Sharschmidt and Miss Mary Price. It was unused at the time and contained an unused truck.

A house on the property was also unoccupied, being used only on weekends by Mr. and Mrs. Warren Miller of Mountainhome.

The barn had a dressed fieldstone foundation and a story and a half frame upper portion. It also had hand-pegged oak beams. It was built by Jacob Price over 100 years ago.

"Cause of the fire is unknown; there is no estimate of its worth," Fire Chief George Hugenin said yesterday.

Syncom 3 Nearly Perfect

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Syncom 3 communications Olympic Star satellite rode high in a good orbit Friday, now and then giving voice to the Star Spangled Banner.

Syncom project managers said the orbit was so close to perfect that they almost hesitate to fool around with it.

Nevertheless, the 145-pound spacecraft's course around the earth is not quite straight enough. It weaves back and forth slightly, alternately 17 miles north of and 17 miles south of the equator.

And the orbit is not truly circular. It has an apogee — high point — of 23,550 miles and a perigee — low point — of 21,235 miles, giving it a mean altitude of 22,392 miles.

Congolese Army Regains Control

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP) — The Congolese army regained control of the key northern Congolese city of Bukavu Friday, radio messages said, but three days of fighting left the city in ruins, its streets littered with dead.

At one time the Communist-backed rebels had pushed Col. Leonard Mulamba's Congolese soldiers all the way back to the European quarter, a tiny peninsula jutting out into Lake Kivu. Mulamba's men staged a counterattack late Thursday and the picture slowly turned to the government's favor.

Bolivia Ends Cuban Relations

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — Bolivia broke diplomatic relations with Cuba Friday night. The break left only two nations in Latin America — Mexico and Uruguay — maintaining relations with Prime Minister Fidel Castro's government.

A communique said that Bolivia considered it her duty to abide by the sanctions voted against Cuba by the Organization of American States (OAS) last month in Washington.

Pocono Paving Gets Road Job

HARRISBURG — Pocono Paving Materials, Inc., of Stroudsburg, has been awarded a contract of $295,326 for the resurfacing of a Northampton County road.

The bids were received by the Pennsylvania Highways Dept. yesterday.

The road is 4.54 miles of Rt. 45 between Cherryville and Beersville. The job also includes the modernization of four structures over Hokenauqua and Indian Creeks.

Market Has Irregular Look

NEW YORK (AP) — A show of strength by airlines and some of the merger-minded railroads helped give the stock market an irregular appearance Friday.

The Dow Jones industrial average took a slight loss of .09 at 838.62 but gained on numbers of 551 to 448 among the 1,223 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange. New highs for the year totaled 34 and new lows 28.

Vehicle Firm Aide Protests Board's Contract Awards

EAST STROUDSBURG — A representative of Haynes Motors of Stroudsburg yesterday sharply criticized the East Stroudsburg Area Joint School Committee for accepting a bid for a used school bus that was $398 higher than the low bid submitted.

"Good Faith"
Orville McGraw said the joint committee was not acting in "good faith" when it awarded a $1,795 bid on a 1955, 54-passenger bus to Sausman Chevrolet of Lehigh, Pa.

Paul Nauman of Price Township, president of the joint committee, last night said the committee accepted the Sausman bid because it was the only one of two bids received that met specifications.

At a meeting Thursday night the committee awarded the $1,795 bid by Sausman, while rejecting a $1,397 bid on a 1956, 60-passenger bus submitted by M. A. Brightville Body Works of Lebanon.

McGraw said the Brightville bus was parked in front of the school Thursday night "for all to see."

He said the fact that the specifications called for a 54-passenger bus and not a 60-passenger had no bearing on the situation.

Nauman Counters
Nauman countered this argument and said, "If we did not accept the bid for a 54-passenger bus Sausman could turn right around and sue us. We advertised for this type bus because we wanted this size bus. We will be using the bus on a route that will be traveling back roads and a bigger bus would be more dangerous to operate."

Nauman also said the bus the committee accepted has a new motor and is completely re-conditioned. "In my opinion, there is no comparison between these two buses," said Nauman, who has operated a garage in Cresco for 20 years.

McGraw was also critical of the committee for awarding a low bid of $5,091 on a new bus to Sausman and then awarding the high bid on a used bus to the same firm.

Local firms submitting bids on a new 54-passenger, Chevrolet chassis vehicle were Tucker Chevrolet of Stroudsburg for $5,444 and Haynes for $5,697.

McGraw said if the committee accepted the low bid on the used bus it could have saved $43,000. "So what did they do? They took the money off the used bus and put it on the new one? This is how Sausman made a profit," he said.

Local Firms

Nauman related that East Stroudsburg was the first school district in the county to set up strict specifications for buying school buses. "In the past we have advertised for 60-passenger buses and sometimes got six different chassis and body types. So the low bid did not necessarily represent the best bus."

"This procedure has worked very successfully for us in the past," he said because of the procedure, East Stroudsburg has ended up with sturdy, heavy buses and is able to cut down on repair and maintenance costs.

Udall Sees Tocks Passage In 1965

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall said yesterday in Washington that it appeared Tocks Island legislation will go "all the way" next year.

He said there will be some additional study made by the Army Corps of Engineers, which will be completed before next year.

The Arizona cabinet member said that the Wilderness Bill has nothing to do with Tocks Island, and won't affect that project at all.

Udall has been close to the Tocks Island Dam and Recreation Area situation. He spoke in Stroudsburg concerning the proposed measure in July, 1963.

Also in Washington, Congressman Fred B. Rooney (D-Pa.) said he is happy that the secretary has committed himself and his department to early approval of the bill to create the dam and recreation project.

Congress recently appropriated funds for further study of the project by the Army Engineers. The dam would create a reservoir on the Delaware River to supply metropolitan areas with water.

The recreation area, according to Udall, would be the largest drawing card among recreational areas east of the Mississippi.

Italy's Communist Chief Dies Of Stroke Complexity
illnesses and all the shifts in the Kremlin line.

But the chunky Togliatti had been in shaky health since a student shot him four times in 1948 in Rome, almost setting off a civil war. He suffered a stroke Aug. 13 while vacationing in Yalta, the Soviet resort on the Black Sea.

He was stricken while visiting a camp of Young Pioneers—Soviet Boy Scouts—and was so gravely ill he could not be moved from the camp's infirmary.

Italian Premier Aldo Moro, a dedicated anti-Communist, ordered an Italian air force plane to fly Togliatti's personal physician and his chief deputy, Luigi Longo, to Yalta. Pope Paul VI prayed for both Togliatti and Italian President Antonio Segni, also gravely ill from a stroke when Togliatti was stricken.

Doctors performed exploratory brain surgery Thursday, to no avail. Early Friday, an announcement said he had taken a turn for the worse. A few hours later he was dead.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev arrived at the camp a short time after Togliatti died.

In November 1957, the U. S. House Committee on Un-American Activities called Togliatti "one of the most dangerous men outside the Soviet empire."

Our Man In Atlantic City

Demos' Convention Classed 'Ratifying'

Robert S. VanFleet, Chief, Ottawa News Service

ATLANTIC CITY—Democrats, who outnumber Republicans in the nation, are sending almost twice as many delegates to their national convention in Atlantic City as the Republicans sent to theirs in San Francisco.

The convention that opens Monday is classed as a "ratifying" convention because there is little to do except nominate an incumbent President, adopt a platform whose general outlines are already known, and acclaim a candidate for vice president to be selected by President Johnson.

So with less to argue about, less pressure behind the arguments, and a shorter agenda, Democrats will operate under a system that apportions to the various states a maximum of 5,260 delegates and alternates.

It took only 2,610 Republicans in California to nominate Barry M. Goldwater.

Fractional Voting
But each Democratic delegate will not have a full vote. The party for many years has used a system of fractional voting that at times has been cut down to one-twentieth of a vote to a delegate.

In 1924, for example, the convention defeated a minority platform report calling for condemnation of the Ku Klux Klan. The vote was 543 and three-twentieths, the closest vote on anything in the history of national conventions.

As a result of this system, the 2,944 delegates, 2,208 alternates, and 108 members of the Democratic National Committee will have a maximum voting power of 2,316. It will take 1,159 votes to nominate or pass a resolution.

At San Francisco, Goldwater needed only 566 votes to win, although he wound up with more than 800.

Pennsylvania is sending a delegation of 285 representatives to the convention.

Of these, 160 will be delegates with 125 votes among them. Alternates will vote only if a delegate is not present during a roll call.

The large numbers this year result from the action of the Democratic National Committee in January in drastically increasing the number of votes to be given each state.

In 1960, when John F. Kennedy was nominated at Los Angeles, there were 1,521 votes.

How States Are Apportioned
Here's how the states are apportioned their 1964 votes:

1. Three votes for each electoral vote.
2. One vote for every 100,000 popular votes cast for Kennedy in 1960.
3. A bonus of 10 votes if the state casts its 1960 electoral votes for the Democratic nominee.
4. One vote each for the national committeeman and national committeewoman.

In the case of Pennsylvania, this means three votes—or a total of 87 for each of the 29 electoral votes; 26 votes for the 2.6 million Democratic votes given Kennedy; 10 as a bonus because Kennedy carried the state over Richard M. Nixon; and two for the members of the national committee—a total of 125 Atlantic City votes.

R. F. Kennedy Gets Wagner's Support

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Robert F. Wagner announced Friday his long-anticipated endorsement of Robert F. Kennedy for the Democratic senatorial nomination from New York, virtually assuring the attorney general's nomination.

Kennedy is expected to oppose the incumbent Republican, Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, who is seeking a second term independently of the GOP presidential candidate Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

Keating
Keating is 64, a veteran of 18 years in Congress, the last six as U.S. senator. Kennedy is 38 and has never run for an elective office.

President Johnson has been pictured as welcoming Kennedy's entrance into New York politics as a means of strengthening the party locally and also in the hope of picking up one of the two Republican-held Senate seats. However, the White House has publicly kept hands off the pre-convention maneuvering.

Kennedy is expected to announce his candidacy formally, then resign as attorney general Sept. 1, when the State Democratic Convention meets in New York. In Washington Kennedy was at work in the Justice Department, where there was no immediate reaction to Wagner's endorsement.

Endorsement
Wagner's endorsement came despite fervent pleas by Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., who has been seeking the senatorial nomination for himself.

He said that anything less than support for the national law and its quick implementation, "would be a repudiation of the efforts of President Johnson and the Democratic leadership in Congress. Moreover, it could be the forfeiture of our acknowledged moral leadership."

"This committee," said Tate, "certainly does not need to be reminded that the inevitable price of inaction would be a continuation of the troubled events of the past year."

He said that anything less than support for the national law and its quick implementation, "would be a repudiation of the efforts of President Johnson and the Democratic leadership in Congress. Moreover, it could be the forfeiture of our acknowledged moral leadership."

On urban affairs, Tate urged "the adoption of a clear, forthright pledge of support for recreation and open space programs that make healthful and productive leisure time activities possible for our people, while at the same time preserving our priceless heritage of natural beauty through appropriate conservation programs."

Genevieve Blatt

Blatt Claims Victory

HARRISBURG (AP) — Genevieve Blatt, formally claiming victory in her long, bitter struggle for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate, appeared Friday for a united effort in the fall campaign.

The action came just minutes after the state Elections Bureau notified Miss Blatt that the official vote count from the April 28 primary 115 days ago gave her a margin of 491 votes over her opponent, 461,111 to 460,620.

Launched Campaign
Miss Blatt, state secretary of internal affairs, said she is launching her campaign immediately to unseat Republican incumbent Hugh Scott, despite litigation still pending before the U.S. Supreme Court.

Her primary opponent, Justice Michael A. Musmanno of the state Supreme Court, has appealed a decision by the state court refusing to count nearly 6,000 votes cast on the wrong line on Philadelphia voting machines.

"I am confident the appeal will be dismissed in due time and I feel I am justified in proceeding with the campaign," Miss Blatt declared, vowing to get things done for Pennsylvania if elected.

A Precedent
There is a precedent which could work in favor of Miss Blatt in the Supreme Court. In 1948, when President Johnson made his first successful bid for the Democratic nomination for the Senate in Texas, he won by only 87 votes.

His opponent, Gov. Coke Stevenson, appealed all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court. But Justice Hugo Black ruled that a primary was not a federal election, therefore the federal courts were without jurisdiction.

In Pittsburgh Musmanno issued a statement which said in part:

"The constitutional question involved is now before the Supreme Court of the United States and everyone concerned ought to await its decision. There is no occasion for pre-mature action."

Hints At Possible Third-Party Move

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Segregationist Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama demanded Friday a plank calling for outright repeal of the Civil Rights act and hinted at a possible new third-party movement.

Sharp Language
In sharp language, Wallace warned of an uprising against the party's "prevailing leadership" unless it reverses "an alien philosophy of government which the American people cannot long embrace — an unsound and dangerous philosophy."

He implied he will take leadership in a third-party movement immediately after the presidential election if, as he put it, the Democratic and Republican parties "me-too each other through the presidential campaign of this year."

In such an event, the Alabama governor's statement said: "We will begin immediately after Nov. 3 to start a movement to bring about representative government."

We will use public opinion, and we will use the ballot box. "We are going to remove some people from office, and we are going to represent people who want to save this country."

Delegates Released
Wallace, who entered presidential primaries in Wisconsin, Indiana and Maryland and showed surprising strength, released his own delegates after the Republican party had nominated Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater.

He recalled Friday Reconstruction days in his appearance at the final session of the Platform Committee preceding next week's Democratic National Convention. He said Southerners "once before have thrown the yoke of oppression from their backs . . . Their action is instructive to this party at this time."

Federal Troops
In return for a promise of removal of federal troops in 1976, he recalled, three Southern states gave their electoral votes to Republican Rutherford B. Hayes, who had run second to Democrat Samuel J. Tilden. Hayes won, "the troops were removed, and Reconstruction ended," Wallace said.

"The people rose up and sternly changed the direction of a government which ignored a whole people and catered to vested interests," he declared. "I come here today to sound a warning to the Democratic party of another such uprising."

Wallace said he spoke not as a Southerner but as a lifelong Democrat and added: "I state to you that I have no illusion that the warning I sound will be heeded. But let it be said that the warning was sounded."

U. S. GI Killed By Viet Cong

A U.S. Army special forces enlisted man became the 18th American to die in combat in the Vietnamese war. He was cut down while on patrol with mountain troops in the Aa Shan Valley, near the Laotian frontier 370 miles north of Saigon.

This incident developed as blood from the wounded of one of the Viet Cong's most successful strikes in the Mekong River delta stained the helicopter landing pad at My Tho, 30 miles southwest of Saigon.

Wallace forecast failure for the effort of his neighbor, Gov. Carl E. Sanders of Georgia, to gain Southern acceptance of a moderate civil-rights plank simply pledging implementation of the 1964 Civil Rights Act, with emphasis on local rather than federal enforcement.

"There has been presented to this committee a civil-rights plank which is purportedly acceptable to my region of the country," Wallace told the platform drafters.

"Let the record show that this is not true — that no such plank will be acceptable to the people of the South — that you disdain the Constitution of the United States if you feel compelled to include such a declaration in the platform of the Democratic party."

"This bill (the rights law) ought to be repealed." Wallace told the platform drafters that "every aspect of the civil rights bill was endorsed by the Communist party"; that the government is wielding a "terrible sword of coercion"; that the Supreme Court is "constituting the Constitution in a matter so as to rationalize anarchy."

"This party now faces a break in its ranks which cannot be explained away by meaningless expressions such as 'white backlash' . . . The break is nationwide. Our form of government has been altered without the consent of the people . . ."

"The American people are going to tell you about this in November."

Today's Lesson:

Call For Faithfulness

By R. H. Ramsey

Our lesson today opens with the first chapter of Deuteronomy in which Moses begins his summation of the trials and tribulations which have afflicted Israel since she began the exodus from Egypt.

After 40 years of wandering, the Israelites are once again about to enter the promised land of Canaan. In reviewing the past 40 years, Moses reminds them of God's promises that everything will be theirs if they only believe and obey Him. All their afflictions thus far have come as a result of their incredulity and disobedience and, in effect, Moses tells them that without obedience they may never gain the Promised Land.

The first three verses of Deuteronomy 6 capsule today's lesson neatly: If the people will only listen to and obey God's voice, they will live long and increase mightily in the land of milk and honey which God has promised them.

Then he goes on to explain the relationship which should prevail between God and man, a statement repeated by Christ in Mark 12:30. In the first place, there is One above us, omnipotent, eternal, unchangeable, one apart from ourselves. He is God.

He is our God. He is ours because He has created us in His own image. He loves us and desires to redeem us; and because we will ultimately, if we are believers, be in His presence, He desires us to approach Him as a Father.

He is One. Contrary to the innumerable deities of paganism, He is one: whether He be revealed in the Persons of Father, Son or Holy Spirit. He is still one God.

Israel is never to forget this. It must be engraved on their hearts and diligently passed on from generation to generation. If necessary, they must wear the Law before their eyes and place it on the doorposts so they will ever be reminded to keep the Divine Law.

It is now or never for the Israelites to keep their part of the Covenant. God has kept His thus far, and, even now is ready to forgive the Israelites their transgressions. But woe unto those who disobey in the future!

Now Moses gives the people instructions as to their behavior after they enter the Promised Land. They will conquer because God has promised it. But after she must dwell with a pagan people. And, to obey God, she must keep separate from them.

In the second half of chapter 7 there is a long, detailed promise of victory, followed by the basic exhortation that if they forget the Lord their God and walk after the gods of the pagans they would perish.

Thus far, God has dealt graciously with Israel, Moses says in chapter 8. Never forget Him. For there is no sin more common than that of forgetting God. He is the sin of youth, middle and old age; of the foolish and frivolous, the sensual and worldly; of professional and tradesmen; of politicians and students; of preachers and theologians who are tempted to make ideas of God do duty for God.

Moses introduces a summarizing review of two tragic crises in the last 40 years of Israel's history in Deuteronomy 9. He reminds them of their own stubbornness and deprives them of any justification for boasting of their own goodness or righteousness. Unflinchingly he calls for single-hearted, personal devotion to Jehovah, whose care of His people has been so manifest in the benefits showered upon them.

There are three great and good reasons why Israel should zealously obey the Law of the Lord, Moses says (Deuteronomy 10:12-11:32).

Rev. Hugh E. Kelsey

Rev. Hugh Kelsey Is Guest Speaker

EAST STROUDSBURG — The guest minister at the Presbyterian Church in East Stroudsburg Sunday, will be the Rev. Hugh E. Kelsey, D.D. of New York.

Dr. Kelsey, associate treasurer of the Commission on Ecumenical Mission and Relations of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A., was a missionary in Egypt under the former Board of Foreign Missions of the United Presbyterian Church from 1928 to 1941. During these years he taught in Assiut College, a school for boys founded almost a hundred years ago, and did evangelistic work in Tanta and the Fayoum. He also gave service as occasion required in the office of the mission treasury.

He remained in the United States after regular furlough in 1941 because of war conditions of North Africa. For the next few years he served first as pastor of the United Presbyterian Church in Bloomington, Ind., and then as pastor of a United Presbyterian Church in suburban Pittsburgh. In 1947 he joined the staff of the Board of Foreign Missions of the former United Presbyterian Church, and became treasurer of that Board in 1950. In the same year he traveled in Africa, visiting the Sudan, Ethiopia, and Egypt.

He has just returned from a year in Teheran, Iran, where he served in the mission office. He has been active in the Division of Foreign Missions of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A., and has served on the executive committee and as treasurer of the division.

Dr. Kelsey was graduated from Muskingum College, New Concord, Ohio, and from Xenia Theological Seminary, St. Louis, Missouri. He received a master's degree from Ohio State University, and the degree of Doctor of Divinity from Sterling College, Sterling, Kansas.

Seamen's Center Dedication Set

NEW YORK — The recently completed $1,100,000 Seamen's Center of the Lutheran Church in America will be dedicated here on Sunday, Sept. 27. The service will be held in the chapel of the new 11-story building at 123 East 15th Street in Manhattan.

Dr. Alfred L. Beck, president of the New York Synod of the LCA, will officiate at the dedication, and Dr. Malvin H. Luncheon, LCA secretary, will give the main address on the subject "Using What God Gives."

Greetings will follow from the Hon. Leo Brown, New York's commissioner of marine and aviation; Admiral John M. Wil, U.S.N. (ret), president of American Export Lines, and chairman of the Center's Advisory Council; Dr. E. Theodore Bachmann, secretary of the LCA's Board of Theological Education, on behalf of Dr. Harold Haas, executive of the Board of Social Ministry; and other appointed agency representatives.

Because of the chapel's limited seating capacity, seats for the special liturgical service are reserved, but those without tickets will be accommodated in the Center's fellowship hall and other assembly rooms. After the service, a tour of the facilities will be conducted under the guidance of hostesses from various neighborhood churches.

The building fund which made the new Center possible resulted from the voluntary gifts of Sunday Schools and other groups and of many individuals including members of LCA congregations. Generous contributions were also made by friends in the shipping industry.

Funds on hand included $300,000 from consolidation with the Lutheran Home for Women, $200,000 as proceeds of the sale of the old Water Street property, and $350,000 from a mortgage to be amortized over a 30-year period.

According to Dr. J. Vincent Nordgren, executive director of the Seamen's Center, an additional $32,000 is needed to meet the cost of equipment and construction not as of now provided for, and is being sought through voluntary gifts. The offering at the dedication ceremony will be added to the building fund.

The Seamen's Center has a long record of Lutheran service to seafarers and other transients. Housed for many years in its old building on Water Street, it was operated by the Augustana Lutheran Church until its merger in 1962 with three other church bodies to form the LCA. The Center now receives support from the Church's Board of Social Ministry and its local affairs are managed by a board elected by the New York Synod.

Traveling with the Reid Evangelistic Party for the summer months is Miss Susan Tan, from Manila, Philippines. Miss Tan will make a personal appearance tonight according to the Rev. J. Russell Cairns at the First Pentecostal, Assembly of God, Stroudsburg.

Miss Tan is the first young person to join the new Chinese Bethel Temple opened by the Rev. Reid in 1960 in Manila. She is now a student at Northwest College in Kirkland, Wash., where she is training to return to her own people. You will hear her sing in both English and Chinese, testify of her experience with Christ.

The Rev. Reid said the appearance of Miss Tan is an experience that every Christian should see, as you can visualize with your own eyes, the results of your missionary giving in action.

Lutherans Urge United Welfare Services

COLUMBUS, Ohio — A statewide, inter-Lutheran agency which would consolidate the administrative functions of numerous social welfare services in Ohio has been proposed here.

The proposal was contained in the findings of an 18-month study undertaken by the National Lutheran Council's Division of Welfare at the joint request of the three major Lutheran church bodies in this country — Lutheran Church in America, American Lutheran Church, and Lutheran Church — Missouri Synod.

The proposed multi-function agency would involve equal cooperation by the three church bodies and provide "an overall program of individualized services to people, both institutional and non-institutional."

The Rev. G. S. Thompson, executive secretary of the NLC division, said the agency would, if established as proposed, cover a wider range of services than available now through statewide agencies involving the three bodies.

Called for by the proposal are current and new services which would be provided through two principal divisions, a Division of Family and Children's Services and a Division of Services to the Aging.

Mr. Thompson noted that the report also "provides for implementation by making use of the Lutheran Welfare Council of Ohio and suggests means by which the churches may enlarge their responsibility and power during the interim preceding the organization of the statewide agency."

The LWC, created in 1946, serves as a joint social planning and co-ordinating agency. Welfare programs provided under Lutheran auspices in Ohio include such services as care for the aged, child care, adoption and services for unmarried mothers, community services, and family services.

Eighteen agencies were included in the study in addition to the LWC. Mr. Thompson said, noting that the survey centered on programs "in their totality rather than on an agency-oriented or agency-by-agency basis."

The study purpose, the report stated, was to determine "what should be the future program of services in Ohio — the nature, organizational structure, staffing and financing of the services, and their relationship to the church bodies."

The recommendation for consolidation of administrative functions, it said, was based on a finding which indicated a "fragmentation" of services as "the key underlying problem to be resolved."

Mr. Thompson, describing the report as more than a division staff study, observed:

"It is the product of consultation with a committee from the three church bodies, with public and voluntary agencies in Ohio, with community planning committees, and with authorities of national welfare agencies.

"The unified approach to the problem of fragmented welfare services of the churches in Ohio is the outcome of increasing cooperation between the church bodies."

"The mergers resulting in the ALC in 1960 and the LCA in 1962 as well as current plans for the LCUSA have established an atmosphere in which such cooperation has been possible."

(The LCUSA—Lutheran Council in the United States of America — has been proposed as a successor agency to the NLC. If approved, it will represent the LCA, ALC, LCMS, and the Synod of Evangelical Lutheran Churches.)

Its constitution has been recommended for adoption to the respective conventions of the four church bodies over the next three years. It would represent the four bodies in a joint program of theological study and

Christian service.)

Mr. Thompson also hailed the "cooperation from the agency people, executives and boards in supplying the basic information upon which the study rests," as "unanimously heartening."

"Similarly," he continued, "the participation by the church body people, district and synod presidents and district and synod committees, and church body welfare boards staff people, went far beyond the ordinary expectations in such a study."

Historically, the report noted that four previous statewide studies had been carried out in Ohio during the last quarter century, but a "more comprehensive" study was deferred in the late 1950's and early 1960's due to church mergers.

The study "differs significantly from previous studies in that the church bodies are jointly assuming responsibility for the implementation of its recommendations," the report stated.

Hunting Licenses To Go On Sale

STROUDSBURG — Hunting licenses will go on sale in Monroe County Monday. They will be available from all license-sellers in the county.

It is not necessary to go to the county treasurer's office to buy a hunting license.

A junior license (ages 12-16) will cost $3.20; a resident (ages 17-up) will cost $5.20; a non-resident $25.55, and an archery or bow-hunting license, $2.15.

Do license applications will not be accepted before September 21. The applications can be picked up at any license-seller when the hunting license is purchased.

The procedure is that the doe applicant must submit his application to the county treasurer by mail. Only one application per envelope is allowed.

The envelope must be marked "Doe Application" or "Antlerless Doe Application" with the applicant's return address in the upper right hand corner of the envelope.

The applicant must also enclose $1.25 in the envelope. Monroe County has been allocated 5,650 doe licenses this year compared to 3,100 last year.

Applications should be mailed to the County Treasurer, Courthouse, Stroudsburg, Pa.

Police Probe Thefts At Stroud Union

STROUDSBURG — Stroudsburg borough police are investigating the theft of more than $500 worth of equipment from Stroud Union High School. The looting occurred between 9:30 p.m. Thursday and 7 a.m. yesterday.

According to police, there was no sign of forcible entry. Thieves entered the metal shop, breaking a window in the shop to gain entry to the main room. They also picked a lock.

The burglars then entered the toolroom, took a bolt cutter, cut the lock on a metal cabinet and took a 1/4-inch electric drill valued at about $35, and a set of Swiss files, valued at about $50.

Also, thieves took four new typewriters from a typing classroom valued at a total of $800. Thieves also broke into a biology classroom, lifting several bottles of nitric and sulphuric acid, and took the bolt cutter along.

Depot Soldering Course For Rockets And Missiles

TOBYHANNA — Twenty-four civilian employees of the Tobyhanna Army Depot are currently taking a course in "Certified Soldering for Rockets and Missiles."

This is a course which will enable its graduates to solder and inspect minute rocket and missile components with expert workmanship to critical tolerances.

The course began Aug. 17 and will end Aug. 28. During the two weeks, 40 hours of instruction will cover the entire subject of soldering, with emphasis on the small tolerances which missile work requires.

It is being taught by Joe Adams and Russell Lehigh of the Munitions Command, Frankford Arsenal, Philadelphia. Twelve of the employees are learning to solder, the other 12 are learning to inspect the work.

A request for the course was made by the depot to the Army's Munitions Command, and the two instructors were sent to Tobyhanna.

"Due to the increasing complexity of military electronics equipment," Adams said, "the requirement for certification is more necessary. Each man will receive a certificate at the end of the course—providing he passes it."

Some of the headings covered in the course are "Types of solder, flux, and equipment; contour soldering; stripping and tinning; soldering the printed circuit board; J-hooks; hollow, turreted, and slotted terminals; inspection of projects, examination and critique."

Lehigh said that the specifications often call for a minimum insulation gap of one-thirty second of an inch, and a maximum gap of the diameter of the insulation. This gap is the distance between the insulation and the actual solder weld.

"This tiny space shouldn't contain any solder," Adams said. "On the inspection of soldered connections, any that are questionable when viewed with the naked eye are put under a 10 power magnifying glass to check the bond."

"Strength is determined from visual appearance," Adams said. "A good bond will, by definition, hold well. Sometimes on these missiles and rocket connections, a controlled amount of solder must be used. This is because of weight tolerances in the missiles."

"As little solder as possible should be used, yet a good bond must be maintained," he added. Groups from the Munitions Command travel all across the county for training purposes, showing military and civilian government workers the latest techniques in electronics assembly and maintenance, as well as operation.

Lehigh, for instance, just returned from California, and Adams from Chicago. The men travel to government installations, and to places where government contracts for electronics equipment are being carried out.

Lehigh estimated he spends approximately 10,000 miles per year on the road. He said that ordinarily, the instructors have a "railroad car and two trailers, in which all of our equipment and training aids are stored. We teach in these."

He said that at Tobyhanna, materials were shipped and set up in a special room for training. Motion pictures, slides, visual aids, and actual soldering tools and equipment are used during the 40 hours of instruction.

Request To Platform Group

Rooney Urges Strong Stand On Illegal Foreign Goods

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Rep. Fred B. Rooney yesterday urged the Democratic Party to take a strong stand against illegal dumping of foreign-produced goods as part of its 1964 campaign.

In a written request to Nevada Governor Grant Sawyer and Mrs. Marjorie Thurman, Co-Chairmen of the Democratic Platform Committee's panel on economic matters, Congressman Rooney said:

"Since both your panel and the full Platform Committee have devoted an extraordinary amount of time to giving the widest possible representation of American industry, labor and culture an opportunity to be heard, I will be brief."

"It is my deepest hope that our great Party's 1964 platform will include a strong plank in opposition to illegal dumping of foreign-produced goods and other unfair import trade practices which do grievous injury to America's producers and workers."

"The Antidumping Act needs to be strengthened — not because we are opposed, as a Nation or regionally, to the encouragement of trade between countries, but because we oppose the illegitimate flow of goods across national borders in the guise of free trade. Such practices damage our own economy, threaten the amicable trade relations we now enjoy and pursue and are a direct violation of the intent of the international trade agreements we have entered into."

"I urge the Platform Committee to consider a strong stand against dumping and similar unfair trade practices as part of the Democratic Party's progressive and enlightened program for a great and growing American society."

Representative Rooney's first bill following his swearing-in as a member of the Congress in August, 1963, was designed to strengthen anti-dumping laws.

At that time he pointed out that the two major industries in his district, steel and cement production, are most vitally affected by illegal dumping practices. Rooney feels that stronger laws are needed, not only to protect producers on the domestic market, but to preserve jobs for the thousands of men and women employed in steel and cement manufacturing.

OBITUARIES

Peter Hook's Funeral Today

EAST GREENVILLE — Peter Hook, 44, of 5 E. Maple St., Myerstown, formerly of Kunklestown, was killed instantly on Rt. 81 near Tannersville while working on road construction for the Morrissey Construction Wednesday.

He is survived by his wife, Eva Roeder Hook, a son, Peter Jr., two daughters, Linda and Lois, all at home; four brothers, Joseph of Gilbert, John of Yorkers, N.Y., James of Kunklestown, Alex of Los Angeles, Calif.; three sisters, Mrs. Russell DeHaven of Tannersville, Mrs. John Sulek of Hokenauqua, and Mrs. Woodrow Eischenhart of Buena Park, Calif.

Funeral services will be held today at 2 p.m. in the Main Funeral Home, 221 Main St., East Greenville. Interment will be in the Pennsylvania Lutheran Cemetery, Pennsylvania. The viewing will be from noon until 2 p.m. at the funeral home today.

Lehigh estimated he spends approximately 10,000 miles per year on the road. He said that ordinarily, the instructors have a "railroad car and two trailers, in which all of our equipment and training aids are stored. We teach in these."

Stroudsburg Native's Wife

CAMDEN, N.J. — Mrs. Olive Reed Pinsky, 56, of 221 Vine St., Camden, N.J., died in the Cooper Hospital in Camden, N.J., yesterday at 9 a.m.

She was a daughter of the late Moses and Stella Reed formerly of McPherson, Pa.

She is survived by her husband Edward, who originally was from Stroudsburg.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later by the Daniel G. Warner Funeral Home.

Mrs. Cora Nevil Of Stroudsburg

STROUDSBURG — Mrs. Cora Nevil, 90, of 202 N. 9th St., Stroudsburg, died in the General Hospital of Monroe County yesterday at 5 p.m.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later by the Daniel G. Warner Funeral Home.

Summons Filed Over Creek Blast

STROUDSBURG — An East Stroudsburg RD man, who claims he was injured in the disastrous June 26 Marshalls Creek blast, yesterday filed a summons in Tresspass in Monroe County Court against Albert J. Kodas of Port Carbon, driver of the ill-fated trailer.

Atty. Edwin Krawitz, of Stroudsburg, counsel of Florian Kukan, co-owner of the Hotel Pines, located near the blast site, said the next step in the proceedings will be to file a complaint which is now being prepared.

Kukan claims he suffered severe injuries to his neck and back and including his spine when he was thrown across a room in his hotel as a result of the concussion from the blast.

He alleges that as a result of the blast he has spent sums of money for medicines and medical care and that he still continues to suffer pain as a result of the injuries.

It is contended the explosion was caused by Kodas' negligence when he broke various rules and regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission and other governmental bodies.

It is further averred that the trailer carrying the 15 tons of explosives was defective and out of repair and contributed to the cause of the blast.

BALLOONS — When Edward Demansky, vice-president of the Bangor Exchange Club which sponsors the Blue Valley Farm Show, took his little girls to the fair and bought them balloons, he didn't realize what he got himself into. The two, Christie, 3 1/2, left, and Diane, 5, struggled and struggled, but their lungs weren't up to it. As usual, Daddy came to the rescue. Farm show closes tonight. (Photo by McNett)

Man, 60, Back In Jail Again

STROUDSBURG — Efforts by local law enforcement agencies to prevent John W. Burns, 60, of Washington, D.C., from becoming a public nuisance apparently failed. He was committed to jail on Wednesday and remained again on Thursday. The second time, starting yesterday, got him a 30-day sentence.

Burns was apprehended by Stroudsburg borough police and charged with public intoxication at a hearing before Floyd W. Kellogg, Justice of the Peace in Stroudsburg. Burns paid his fine and cost for the first offense and was released.

Baseball Big Business

The sale of the mighty New York Yankee baseball empire to mightier Columbia Broadcasting System's empire might well be the crowning blow to the declining attraction that was once known as the "national pastime."

The sale of the most successful franchise in the history of the major leagues to one of the most powerful companies in the communications industry can only bring shame and public ridicule on a sport that once had tender ballads written about it.

The immediate cry from congressmen and senators and even from a few baseball owners will force another congressional evaluation of the sport that produced the likes of Babe Ruth and Stan Musial and on the other side of the ledger, Charles Finley and Bo Belinsky.

To be sure, the sale of the Yankees will not be the only factor that will lead to an investigation of whether the sport should be classified as a business and placed under the scrutiny of federal anti-trust laws.

Other factors that will surely be taken into consideration will be the Dodgers' callous move from faithful old Brooklyn to greener pastures in Los Angeles and the Milwaukee Braves' threatening fans to come out to the ball park or watch the franchise move to Atlanta, Ga. These Milwaukee fans are the same ones who came out in greater numbers during the last ten years than fans in any other major league city.

Owners of baseball franchises — for years — have been fighting inclusion under the anti-trust laws on the specious argument that baseball is a sport not a business. This is a weak argument but congress has paid lip service to the argument because it was reluctant to tamper with the "national pastime." Owners have made it clear that they are out to make money and not to accommodate fans or players or necessarily to preserve the sport.

Curiously any move to place baseball under anti-trust restrictions has a flavor of a conservative vs. liberal fight. Conservatives argue that government should stay out of free enterprise. The liberal tact is that prudent government intervention in business is a necessary evil. The conservatives argue that government stifles business expansion. Liberals say business can't be trusted and needs controls to protect the consumer and worker.

The major league baseball franchise is probably the last area of big business left in America that has not been tampered with by federal, state or local governments. There has been no governmental control over baseball.

Yet baseball has proved over the last ten years that they are incapable of taking into consideration the rights of the fan or people who make baseball possible.

Owners, seeking better and easier ways to make money, have finally wiggled themselves into a position that will inevitably bring some amount of government control. It appears necessary.

Baseball seems to prove the liberal viewpoint that some degree of government control is necessary. Just as it was in the coal and steel industries. Just as it was with the major auto producers and giant electric firms. Baseball could be the worst thing that ever happened to the conservative.

Walter Lippmann

Why Not Victory?

By Walter Lippmann
There has been some complaint about the Goldwater camp about the secretary of state and the secretary of defense speaking out on the campaign issues. According to tradition they ought, it is said, to stand apart from the party conflict.

There has indeed been such a tradition. But it has been based on another tradition, which is that politics stops at the water's edge and that on the main lines of foreign policy and national defense the two parties are agreed.

Since the convention at the Cow Palace, the Republican Party has been challenging the basic principles and objectives of American foreign and defense policy. That being the case, the responsible Cabinet officers have not only the right, but the duty, to explain and defend the policies of which they have the most detailed knowledge and for which, next to the President, they have the highest responsibility.

For working journalists, whose first concern is to find out what is going on, these days are like trying to read and understand a very difficult book in the midst of a crowd of people blowing horns and banging on tin pans. But we must try.

What, for example, are we to make of the fact that with our present military power, which Sec. Robert McNamara has been describing, we are not "winning" the war in South Vietnam, we are in such trouble over Cyprus, we face the prospect of more trouble in the Congo, British Guinea is a worry and Castro does not go away?

The Goldwater answer to these questions is that all these troubles are being promoted and controlled from Moscow and Peking, and the troubles would cease if we had a President who had the nerve to use our immense nuclear power to command Moscow and Peking to cease and desist.

This sounds simple and gutsy. But if the Communists do not cease and desist, the Goldwater strategy would force us to choose between admitting that we had been bluffing and accepting a war in which 10 million Americans might be burned up.

Either way, it would not be much of a victory, and the simple solution, which has such incalculable risks, is ready to solution at all.

The question remains: why, with all our military power, can we not make the outer world behave as we think it should? It throws light on this question, I believe, to notice that the second superpower, namely the Soviet Union with its formidable nuclear arsenal and its immense army, is also finding that it cannot make all its wishes prevail.

The latest evidence of this is that the Soviet Union, which stretches across Northern Asia to the Pacific, finds itself blackballed as a member of the Afro-Asian group of Communist parties. This is as if the United States were excluded from the Organization of American States.

If we look around some more, we see that the other great powers — Britain, France, Italy, Germany and Japan — are also finding that their military superiority is obvious. The advanced nations of the world seem to be in the grip of a paradox: though their military power increases, their political power in large areas of the world diminishes.

This paradox can, I believe, be explained. While the great powers have been making themselves infinitely stronger, the weak peoples have invented and are perfecting a method of warfare which enables them to elude and circumvent the great warfare of the great powers.

The weapons of the weak may be the non-violent civil disobedience as Gandhi used it in India, or it may be violent as Mao practiced it in China and as General Giap now practices it in Indo-China. The point is that modern weapons, conventional or nuclear, cannot find targets to hit which will defeat the guerrilla warfare of the weak.

The only way to defeat the guerrilla is to put much larger numbers of men on the ground, in the jungles and in the swamps, on the plains and in the mountains. As against Africans and Asians, while the men cannot win such wars, what is more, white men, including the Russians, will not mobilize the large enough masses of men required for this kind of warfare. The experience of the British and the French, the Belgians and the Dutch is that guerrilla warfare in Africa and Asia can have no victorious military solution.

The plain fact is that the suppression of guerrilla warfare is primarily and predominantly a job for the infantry and not for the airman. The essence of Goldwater's military strategy is the illusion of a major general in the Air Force that wars can be won by bombing, that the short and simple way to victory is not through the mud and the jungle, but by air. The Navy and the Army do not share this illusion.

'Driver Reporter'

By George Dixon
WASHINGTON — There is a 16-page slick-paper publication, "Driver Reporter," dedicated to upholding the fair name of Convicted Teamster President James R. Hoffa. Across the top of Page One of the current issue is emblazoned the headline: "Bobby Charged With Bugging the White House." The lead article then begins:

"Attorney General Bobby Kennedy has installed secret 'listening devices' in the office of President Johnson."

The second paragraph of this arresting article is so tricky worded it leaves the reader uncertain as to who made this charge against Jimmy Hoffa's Nemesis. The third and fourth paragraphs compound the uncertainty with this adroit circumlocution:

"The charges revealed that this information has come from the chairman of an important committee of the House of Representatives. The name is being withheld because of fear of possible political reprisals."

"President Johnson is aware of this 'bugging' of the White House but so far has been afraid to do anything about it because of the political implications with the Kennedy Family."

I obtained my free copy of "Driver Reporter" from a pile of 500 or so which had been prominently stacked in the reception room of the National Press Club by an unidentified purveyor. I hurried with it to the Department of Justice.

There I was told that Attorney General Kennedy was unavailable. One aide said he thought Bobby was somewhere yachting, presumably on water. Another aide said he didn't think Bobby was yachting; he thought the Attorney General was in New York "looking into something or other." The "something" could be the possibility of running against Senator Kenneth B. Keating, but I have no idea about the "other."

A third aide studied the piece about Mr. Kennedy bugging Mr. Johnson's sanctum, then said:

"What good would it do Bobby to bug Lyndon now? Bobby has learned the worst already."

I didn't get this, but everybody else seemed to. Finally, when the baffling mirth had subsided, I begged to be let in on the cause.

"It wasn't anything in particular," said a Kennedy assistant. "We laugh at almost anything here since the President eliminated the Attorney General for Vice President."

I got the impression, somehow, that this explanation was evasive. Nettled, I demanded: "Has, or has not, the Attorney General planted secret listening devices in the office of President Johnson? Let's have a straight answer now, 'Yes' or 'No?'"

"It would be difficult for Bobby to bug Lyndon's office," was the reply. "It'd be easier for Lyndon to bug Bobby's."

Again I got an impression of evasiveness. Fixing a heavy of Assistant Attorneys General with a stern eye, I said:

"Let us have no more justifiable circumlocution! If you are making an accusation against the President, make it! Do you have any evidence that Mr. Johnson has bugged Mr. Kennedy's office?"

Again I got that shiftily-eyed look. Finally one of the galaxy mumbled haltingly:

"Well — President Johnson might be more interested in learning the political plans of Attorney General Kennedy than vice versa. What political plans could the President have that the Attorney General still would be interested in?"

Thoroughly flabbergasted by now, I quit the Justice Department and hiked for the White House. There I panted at LBJ aides:

"Jimmy Hoffa's costly puff sheet charges that somebody or other charges that an important House chairman reveals that RFK has bugged LBJ's office, but the name of the important Congressman is withheld because of fear of possible political reprisal! What about it?"

"He shouldn't fear political reprisal," said a White Houseer enigmatically. "He shouldn't fear the insane asylum."

Opinion On Court Bible Decision

DEAR EDITOR:
As an American citizen, taught to love God, country, and mankind, may I ask that you give space in your publication to this letter?

I should like to voice this opinion regarding the Supreme Court decision about the daily reading of the Bible and the repeating of The Lord's Prayer in the public schools.

Such a decision is as un-American as it is un-Christian. The Holy Bible is the foundation of our American Civilization, and the basis of American thought — just as it is the basis of Christian thought — whether its commandments be taught by Rabbi, Minister, or Priest.

It was to be free to read that Holy Bible — the word of GOD — and to teach, and preach, and spread its doctrine, that our nation was founded.

Certainly, the decision of the Supreme Court regarding Bible reading and the repeating of The Lord's Prayer in the public schools speaks rather for the false teachings of the Anti-

Christians of today's world, rather than for "The Glory Of God" and "The Advancement Of The Christian Faith" to which we are committed as a nation. And this is the first and the essential freedom to be preserved by our Constitution.

The Constitutional Law states that:

"Congress shall make no law respecting the establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

Constitutional Law, Amendment 1: The Bill of Rights.

I feel sure that the law was put there for the sole purpose of preventing just such a decision as that which has been made by the Supreme Court.

In the light of such a decision, it would be well for us all as Americans "who have been taught to love God, country and mankind" to pray in the words of Saint Paul:

Finally, brethren, pray for us, that the word of The Lord may have free course, and be glorified, even as it is with you.

II Thessalonians 3:1 (Saint Paul)

"That glory may dwell in our land."

Psalm 85:9
I would also remind Americans of the words of the following:

"I had fast to the Bible as chief anchor of your liberties. Write its precepts in your hearts, and practise them in your lives. To the influence of this book we are indebted for all progress made in true civilization, and to this book we must look as our guide to the future."

Everybody's Business

DEAR EDITOR:

Letter writing can accurately be described as a fine art. A good letter writer can also be called a true artist. I definitely prescribe to the former and would seek to attain the latter.

Certainly my subject matter, "Mental Health is Everybody's Business," needs no lengthy discourse to capture the readers' interest. I simply and very humbly ask your support to a cause which in terms of its affliction staggers the imagination.

Do you know that one out of every 10 Americans will suffer from some form of mental illness this year? We have more people in hospitals with mental illness than with cancer, polio, heart disease and all other physical diseases combined.

While these statistics may startle you, they are unfortunately true. Yes, mental illness and retardation is an all year-around catastrophe.

Our late President, John F. Kennedy, in one of his last official statements stated, "We as a nation have long neglected the mentally ill and the retarded, we cannot afford to postpone any longer this reversal in our approach to mental affliction."

Your local chapter, the Monroe County Mental Health Association is presently conducting its annual membership campaign. This year, in addition to the many projects undertaken by your chapter, we will offer several scholarships to students in our local college, who are interested in furthering their studies in the field of mental health. Our membership dues are only two dollars ($2.00) annually.

Will you help us — now when the hope is greatest and when every contribution can save an individual life? Will you join me by attaching your check along with mine and return to the Monroe County Mental Health Association, P. O. Box 409, Stroudsburg, Pa. — making you a part of this great movement.

Not just once, but thousands will be grateful.

Rather Be Alive

Dear Editor:

I would like to reply to the gentleman who claimed that the Democrats have brought us into wars.

First of all, we as a nation have always tried to avoid getting involved in any conflict unless it was absolutely necessary to preserve our freedom.

Second and most important is the fact that anytime we had to go into conflict we had the complete support of both parties, Republicans as well as Democrats.

Perhaps the Democratic presidents were more cautious and realized the importance in stopping aggression whether it be fascism or communism.

I might remind the writer that it was a Republican president whose inaction and ineptness led to Castro taking over Cuba. Had the Republican party supported the League of Nations after the first World War chances are that there would not have been a World War II.

The present crisis in Vietnam and Laos came about during a Republican administration. If you want to go further back you might also say that it was a Republican president who led this nation into a bloody civil war.

You see, it all depends on how far back you want to go and whether you want to blame the Democrats or the Republicans for getting us into wars.

At the present time we have a Democratic president who is doing all he can to prevent us from getting involved in an all out war yet remain firm as in our retaliation to the attacks by the North Vietnam PT boats.

On the other hand we have a Republican "trigger happy" candidate who wants to get us involved in an all-out war. Members of his own party have attacked his "extremism."

I leave it up to the public as to whether they want peace or an all out war with no survivors.

I would rather be alive than dead.

Looking Forward To Art Show

Dear Sirs:

I read with interest the short article on your social page concerning the Outdoor Art Show this week at Court House Square. I am one of the many who have come to look forward to this yearly event.

Looking back to the first such I attended, I find I have learned in just four summers how to really enjoy this exhibit.

On my first trip through a Pocomo Mountains Art Group show in the Square, which I think was in 1961, I was so bewildered by the variety presented that I came out dazed.

The next year I played it safe and took a friend with me, feeling at least I would have someone with whom to discuss what I saw.

I am not a critic, judge, or collector of art, but was drawn at first by the thought that something which so many people find worthwhile doing, in whatever medium or style suits them, and which many others find pleasure in viewing, discussing, and even owning was certainly worth investigating.

The last line of today's article goes "... with many of the artists on hand to greet the viewers, or to demonstrate their work." And this, to me, is what makes the show in the Square such a rewarding thing for the casual visitor. And I have only come to realize this since the July show which for me was really an adventure. For this show was not the usual walk and look tour I had made in other summers.

Supervisors Upheld

Dear Editor:

I was interested in a news story in your August 10th issue in which a gentleman by the name of Mr. Tilwick issues a blanket indictment of the township supervisors of your County.

I do not believe they deserve that and I might remind the gentleman that where he states they should be given more control over the communities they serve they already have such complete control.

In fact, a township supervisor in a township has just as much authority as a city councilman and I am not sure whether the township supervisors would welcome his visiting them and advising them even though he were qualified. I am sure the township supervisors would appreciate constructive criticism but I would hesitate to make the statement made by Mr. Tilwick there should be an overall change in the role of the supervisors. He should remember they are locally elected by the people of their respective townships.

President Lyndon B. Johnson

3 Out Of 7 VPs Elected President

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP) — Seven U.S. vice presidents before Lyndon B. Johnson stepped into the presidency when their predecessors died in office.

Afterward, each one sought a term in his own right. But only three were able to capture their party's nomination and go on to win election.

Andrew Johnson and Chester Alan Arthur attracted almost no interest as candidate material. Instead, their parties turned to Horatio Seymour and James Gillespie Blaine.

John Tyler and Millard Fillmore did somewhat better, although they, too, were unable to convince either of the major political parties of their nominees potential. They were nominated by two splinter groups.

Tyler was proposed for the presidency by the Secessionist Democratic Convention of 1844, sometimes referred to as the National Democratic Tyler Convention.

Fillmore, who lost the Whig nomination in 1852 to Gen. Winfield Scott, ran for president in 1856 on the platform of the American (Know-Nothing) Party.

The three who achieved their goal of returning to the White House by popular election all were in this century—Theodore Roosevelt, Calvin Coolidge and Harry S. Truman.

If Johnson is elected, it'll be four in a row.

Connally Will Nominate His Long-Time Favorite

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — When Gov. John B. Connally of Texas and Gov. Edmund G. Brown of California nominate Lyndon B. Johnson for Democratic candidate for president, for Connally it will be like old times.

Connally, closely identified with the President throughout Johnson's political career, nominated Johnson for president at the 1956 convention. Adlai Stevenson won.

He became a leading strategist in 1960 in Johnson's bid for the nomination, won by John F. Kennedy. Johnson was persuaded to surrender the powerful job of Senate majority leader to take second place on the ticket.

The hand of Johnson could be seen in Connally's appointment as secretary of the Navy, although Connally possessed the qualifications after experience as an administrator of two vast oil fortunes.

Connally resigned to run for governor in 1962, winning against strong opponents.

The governor rode in Kennedy's automobile Nov. 22 when the President was assassinated in Dallas.

One bullet struck Connally, crashing through his chest and collapsing a lung, piercing a wrist and embedding itself in his right leg. He was hospitalized for weeks and wore a cast on his wrist for months.

The governor won Democratic renomination for governor this year with ease.

A friend said recently that "Those Connally boys knew what wearing darned socks and patched breeches were" when they helped their father on his ranch south of San Antonio.

Gov. John B. Connally

At the University of Texas, Connally became a campus leader, and while still a student helped Johnson in one of his campaigns. Later he became a Johnson secretary in Washington.

After World War II service in the Navy, Connally became a radio executive and then attorney and administrative executive for Perry R. Bass and the late Sid W. Richardson, extremely wealthy oilmen. He resigned to become secretary of the Navy.

Now 47, his hair streaked with gray, he remains a handsome, personable man showing almost no effects of his Nov. 22 wounds. His current hobby is building a new home south of San Antonio and reclaiming semi-wasteland for ranching.

Daily Record Special Report

150 Associated Press Staffers Report Demos Convention

By The Associated Press

More than 150 Associated Press news and photo staffers have been assigned to cover the 1964 national political conventions.

Many of them are top byliners whose names are familiar to readers of this newspaper and newspapers all over America.

Their bulletin reports and pictures will be transmitted instantly to this newspaper over a network of lease wires set up at Convention Hall in Atlantic City, N. J., for the Democratic convention Aug. 24.

William L. Beale Jr., Washington AP Bureau chief and veteran of 14 national conventions, will direct the news coverage, assisted by Marvin L. Arrowsmith, former White House reporter and now general news editor in Washington.

F. A. Resch, AP general news-photo editor whose first convention assignment was in 1932, will direct the photographic coverage. His aides will include numerous photo editors and technicians who have worked on many previous conventions. His assistant will be Photo News Editor Pat McDonald of New York.

The arrangements result from months of planning and years of experience in delivering fast, accurate and impartial accounts of national conventions.

Beale assembled a staff of 60 newsmen from AP bureaus across the country to cover around clock all phases of the convention, including the back-room maneuvering and news of regional interest. The staff is built around a core of political and government reporters from Washington and New York.

Douglas B. Cornell, veteran of almost 35 years of Washington news coverage and a recognized master of the wrap-up story of big events, will write the main convention morning stories for newspapers.

Jack Bell, head of the AP's Senate staff for 22 years, and Harry Kelly, another Washington veteran, will handle the main convention stories for afternoon newspapers. Bell will write the overnight wrap-ups for early afternoon editions, with Kelly assigned to spot developments before final deadlines.

By-Liners

Two well-known by-liners Reiman (Pat) Morin, winner of two Pulitzer prizes, and Saul Pett, will do general assignment and feature stories.

Providing this newspaper's readers with the behind-the-curtain glimpses of political activity will be Arthur Edison, Washington news and feature writer.

James Marlow, news analyst and author of "The AP's 'The World Today'" column, will interpret the developments at both conventions.

Activities of the candidates' wives and of women delegates at the Democratic convention will be covered by Joy Miller of New York, AP woman's editor.

Assigned to the demanding job of reporting convention developments are a crew of men experienced in handling hot-breaking stories. Among them are William A. Arbogast, Raymond J. Crowley, John Beckler, Geoffrey Gould and Wilbur Martin.

Lewis Gutlick, Edmund Lebrun and Sterling F. Green will cover activities and hearings of the Platform Committees.

Special Assignments

The special assignment reporters who traveled with the major candidates and political figures during the recent months of campaigning will stay close to these newsmen during convention activity.

State Delegations

In addition, a corps of about 20 newsmen will cover state delegations for news of special interest to various regions.

A staff of editors, all of them experienced in working big stories under the pressure of deadlines, will man news desks in three shifts around the clock to insure the fastest possible evaluation, processing and transmission of reports.

Resch's convention staff of photographers, picture editors and darkroom technicians number over 50, and his arrangements include a production line to develop and transmit photographs within minutes after the shutters click.

Private Lines

Private telephone lines will connect the convention news desks with reporters near the platform and on the floor.

Fifteen operators have been assigned to man the Teletype machines and Wirephoto transmitters linked to an intricate network of leased wires.

Sen. John O. Pastore

Sen. Pastore Named Convention Keynoter

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Sen. John O. Pastore of Rhode Island was named keynoter of the Democratic National Convention, one of his colleagues remarked:

"Nobody will go to sleep while he's talking. And I hope they give him room on the platform to move about."

Pastore is regarded in the Senate as a free-flowing speaker who draws on what he knows instead of following a prepared speech, ready to take on all comers in a debate. He often dances about and flails his arms as he argues.

He is a champion of Civil Rights, always in the thick of the fight on social welfare legislation and foreign aid appropriations. He is chairman of the Senate House Atomic Energy Committee, where he demonstrates an ability to translate nuclear terms into language less-versed laymen can understand.

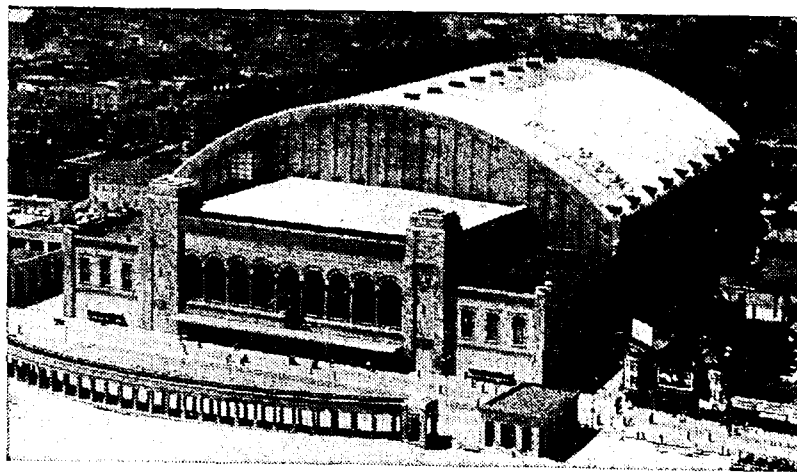

Pastore was born of poor Italian immigrant parents in Providence, R. I., on St. Patrick's Day, 1907. He once said,

"I always felt I had two strikes against me and I succeeded. I had to do a better job than anybody else."

He worked in his father's tail-or shop and a jewelry store and attended law school at night. After he got his degree, he entered politics.

He was state representative, assistant state attorney general, lieutenant governor and governor. He was elected to the Senate in 1950. He was a member of the U. S. delegation to the United Nations in 1953 and a Congressional adviser in 1956 in the U. N. establishment of an international Atomic Energy Agency. He was a Senate representative to international atomic energy conferences in Vienna in 1957 and Geneva in 1958 and 1961.

The convention arrangements committee's choice of Pastore as the keynoter is seen by some to emphasize Johnson's intention to bid strongly for support from the Eastern industrial states where minorities influence voting patterns.

Convention Hall Seen From The Air

Atlantic City's Convention Hall

By Tom Seppy

Associated Press Writer

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP) — President Johnson will become the Democrat Party's standard bearer in Convention Hall, the largest indoor arena in the world, best known as the site of the annual Miss America Pageant.

Johnson will accept the Democratic nomination for president near the spot reserved each year for the crowning of Miss America.

Only a short distance to his right will be an area where in 1939, John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers got into a fist fight and stomped out of an American Federation of Labor convention to found what became the CIO.

Straight ahead, beyond the speaker's stand, will be the finish line of the Greyhound racing track which did big business in 1934 until state authorities got around to declaring dog racing illegal in New Jersey.

Thousands of Events

This resort's huge hall has housed thousands of events since its opening on May 31, 1929, but the Democratic National Convention will be the first major political convocation to be held there.

For it, the Democratic National Convention Committee intends to set up 20,000 folding chairs on the main floor.

Staged in the municipally owned and operated hall during the past 35 years have been football games, track meets, prize fights, jousting matches, ice hockey, horse shows, horse and bicycle races, polo and baseball.

The block-long, 13-story-high hall has also been the site for ballroom dances, "walkathons," operettas, shows from Broadway, a pony express race, motion pictures, school children's field days, daredevil auto driving exhibitions, an indoor "world's fair," and almost every year, an ice show.

It has also doubled as a "cathedral" on several occasions. In 1940, during the Methodist Jurisdictional Conference, the largest seated audience ever to gather in the auditorium—more than 30,000—attended a religious service. In 1958 and 1960, stand-up Catholic Masses were sung in the hall, the former to mark Our Lady of Lourdes pageant, and the latter, attended by some 50,000 worshippers, during the Marian Year celebration.

The $15 million hall, covering seven acres of ground and capable of seating 35,000 in the main auditorium alone, was opened with great fanfare. Vice President Charles F. Curtis made the dedicatory address.

The opening convention was that of the National Electric Light Association. The utility people were celebrating, according to their publicity, "Light's Golden Jubilee."

What the publicity men meant was that 50 years before, in 1879, Thomas A. Edison had invented the incandescent electric lamp. They really didn't mean Edison had invented light, they pointed out.

The delegates packed up their light bulbs, dynamo and building company stock brochures and went home, leaving the auditorium for the use of the American Hospital Association.

Nobody noticed anything funny in the fact that with the departure of the hospital people, the next convention to move into the hall was the National Funeral Directors Association.

The hall has been a background for the dignified deliberations of the triennial convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church and, without straining a girder, has worked out well for the less restrained doings of such organizations as the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks.

It served as an Air Corps training center during World War II.

Nobody Knows How Many

Conventions come and go so frequently and so swiftly in Atlantic City that no tally is available of the number staged in the hall between 1929 and the present.

There are no columns in the main auditorium; the roof being supported by the largest trusses in the world. In fact, they are so large that a sliding joint is built around the roof to allow a three-inch space for expansion and contraction with changes in temperatures.

Speaking of temperatures, delegates to the Democratic convention won't have to worry about the resort's August heat when they're inside the building. The main hall, 31 meeting rooms and ballroom are air-conditioned.

Music for the delegates' entertainment will be played on the world's largest pipe organ. It contains 32,913 pipes, with seven manuals in the main console and five in a movable console. Its largest pipe is 64 feet long and the smallest only 3 1/4 of an inch.

The ballroom on the hall's second floor has a seating capacity of 5,000. During the convention it will be used for caucuses and as a VIP lounge.

Outaway News Service To Cover Local Delegates

STROUDSBURG — Plans to give readers of The Daily Record special coverage of the Democratic National Convention in Atlantic City were announced yesterday by James H. Ottaway Jr., editor.

The Record will receive dispatches from Robert S. Van Fleet, chief of Ottaway News Service who will be in the New Jersey resort city to set up a convention news bureau.

The bureau will supply The Record with news of the voting, opinions, and other activities of delegates representing Pennsylvania and the Monroe and Pike County Areas.

Delegates from the 15th Congressional District (Monroe, Pike, Northampton and Carbon Counties) are Harry Hader of Cresco, Robert Funderbender, Simon A. Kelly and John Choma, Jr., all of Bethlehem.

Dr. Charlotte B. Jordan of Stroudsburg is an alternate delegate. Septimo V. Tanzebla, of Easton, is the district's other alternate delegate.

Van Fleet will report local

news not otherwise covered by the press corps at the convention. He will work on the convention floor when it is in session, in the committees, and at the hotels where the various delegates will stay.

Project '70' Funds Available For Barrett Recreation Site

CANADENSIS — More than 40 Barrett Twp. taxpayers learned Thursday night that 70 percent of the purchase price of recreation property was available to the township.

A representative of the state Department of Commerce said that through Project 70, a grant of 50 percent was available. Edwin A. Sites of Scranton, regional supervisor of the Bureau of Community Development of the state agency said that in less than 40 years the population will double and the need for recreation areas will triple.

Land Grabbing
"In Pennsylvania, land is being consumed at an alarming rate. New developments, highways and buildings have not been equalled by recreational area development," Sites said.

Available to Barrett Twp. is a portion of the $20 million set aside by Project 70 to acquire open land for recreation, conservation or historical purposes. Sites said that in addition to state funds, federal funds amounting to 20 percent, in the form of a grant, were also available. The remaining 30 percent would be raised by the municipality as it saw fit.

Sites said "Project 70 funds are available for the acquisition of land only, not for administration or development which is the responsibility of the local municipality."

Sites congratulated the township in that it qualifies for the funds because a comprehensive planning program is in effect. Limits on the size of land acquired are set as being "from a lot playground to less than a regional (county or state) park."

In describing the types of usage for land which other areas have suggested in their applications for funds, Sites mentioned parks, playgrounds, swimming pool sites, golf courses and ski areas, all of which he said must be "open to the public."

In a question and answer period moderated by Clyde Gierse of Mountainhome, Mrs. Mary Vick Trump noted that her gift of property to the township, now called High Acres, totaled 7.7 acres.

Lawrence Wile of the planning board said two other areas are represented in the overall township planning program. These areas do not belong to the township but could be purchased through Project 70 funds by the board of supervisors.

Side issues on the school board and one-county school district were brought up and discussed. Loss of home rule (loss of government by the board of supervisors) and its effect of the newly acquired land was questioned.

Sites said once the property was owned by the township, it would remain in its possession.

Group Plans Outlined

Following the discussion on Project 70, Robert Bodine of Mountainhome outlined plans for a taxpayers association, the formation of which he is spearheading. He said, "An organization meeting will be held, and necessary legal steps taken to incorporate. The purpose will be to give an honest opinion to the governing bodies of the township of the majority desires."

Bodine said the association would be a voice for the taxpayers in the township on what the people do or do not want. "We will not push for anything to the advantage of the few," he said, "as long as I have anything to do with it."

During the meeting, various taxpayers referred to the community swimming pool which has been proposed for a number of years.

Evangelist To Head Services At Local Church Aug. 24-25

STROUDSBURG — The Rev. Albert E. Reid, an international evangelist, will be the featured speaker at special missionary services Monday and Tuesday, Aug. 24 and 25 at the First Pentecostal Assembly of God in Stroudsburg, it was announced yesterday by Rev. J. R. Cairns, pastor.

Rev. Reid has traveled in 17 foreign countries, the majority of the 59 states and Canada.

Together with his evangelistic team, he has conducted crusades in many of the great cities of the world. The team's headquarters are in Buffalo, N. Y., where the youngest member of the team is pastor of the South Buffalo Tabernacle, which is the fastest growing church of their denomination in the New York district.

The evangelistic team also operates the "Bethel Press," where thousands of pieces of gospel literature are printed to be sent throughout the world. Under the direction of Rev. Reid, two Indian churches are being supervised in the Buffalo area.

Former Pastors

Rev. Reid and his son were the former pastors of the largest church of their denomination, Bethel Temple in Manila, Philippines.

They have conducted evangelistic crusades where over 10,000 persons have heard the message in one night.

The team has produced two sound and color movies of their world travels. Their latest production "Korean Conquest" will be shown at the Stroudsburg services.

The highlight of the local missionary crusade will be the telling of the great "Korean Revival," that missionaries in Korea said was the greatest spiritual awakening that many cities in Korea had ever seen.

B'nai B'rith Sets Up New System

STROUDSBURG — The B'nai B'rith Lodge of Stroudsburg has announced its projects system for the year.

President Gerald Brodsky will hear reports from three vice presidents, who in turn will hear reports from chairmen of the various activities assigned to them.

Vice President Henry Reader will hear reports from committee chairmen Maxwell Cohen, Irving Sommers, Seymour Pollan, and Lawrence Green.

Vice President Arthur Jolley will hear reports from committee chairmen Marshall Feinsiber, Tom Breslauer, Lester Abelloff, Ben Silver, and Max Berman.

Vice President Sidney Cohen will be responsible for committee chairmen J. L. Cohen, Louis Sommers, Morris Resnick, and Norman Gelber.

Maurice Flesher is publicity chairman.

The development of books was largely the work of monks of the Christian church in medieval times.

fiating. Burial was in the Cherry Valley Cemetery. Pallbearers were Frank Werkheiser, James Rehm, Eli Wedger, Ernest LaBar, Collins Van Gorden, and Theodore Van Buskirk.

Y Receipts Down $1,064 In 7 Months

STROUDSBURG — Peirce Harley, YMCA executive secretary, said recently in a report that the organization's receipts were some $1,064 less for the first seven months of the year than had been estimated in the budget.

He said receipts for the period were up by $2,152, while expenses climbed by $3,157 compared to the same span in 1963. The figures do not include a $1,500 insurance premium, Harley added.

Two financial problems plaguing the organization, he continued, were a falloff in summer camp participation, and a "tax burden" of $575.75 on gas station property owned by the YMCA.

Harley said day campers decreased from 115 to 74 due to "the lack of funds in families and the fact that they could not visit the World's Fair and send their children to camp."

He explained that 655 YMCA's operated with deficits last year. Memberships at the local facility have increased from 747 to 1122 during the year, he said.

Attendance jumped to 11,533 during June and July, 3,454 more than during the same period in 1963.

School Lunch Workshop For 3 Counties

PEN ARGYL — A school lunch workshop for schools in Monroe, Carbon and Northampton Counties will be held Tuesday in the Pen Argyl Junior-Senior High School.

It is sponsored by the state Dept. of Public Instruction.

Addresses on the topic of school lunches will be made by Mrs. Laura A. Halliday, area supervisor of homemaking education; William E. Madden, supervising principal of the Pen Argyl Area Joint Schools, and Miss Anne G. Eifler, specialist in school lunch nutrition from the Dept. of Public Instruction in Harrisburg.

Programs in preparation of nutritious foods for lunches will follow. Demonstrators and leaders will be Mrs. Romaine LaBar, of Pen Argyl; Mrs. Ann Jankowski of Bethlehem; Mrs. Mary Hontz of Pen Argyl; Mrs. Bernice Long of Bethlehem; Mrs. Clara Reinhold and Mrs. Barbara Shaffer of Lehighton; Miss Eifler and Mrs. Halliday will discuss "The New Food Buying Guide."

Topics covered by leaders and demonstrators will be "Turkey Tricks" and "Yeast Roll Tricks."

Pre-School Exams At PM

SWIFTWATER — All children who will be enrolled in kindergarten or first grade this year in the Pocono Mountain Joint Schools must be given a pre-school examination, according to C. Willis Dunlap, supervising principal. Dunlap said parents of children who have not taken tests must call the school for an appointment before Wednesday. He said all children will be given an appointment.

Returned To Jail

ALLENTOWN — Ronald Datesman, 23, of Bangor, RD 3, was returned Tuesday to the Northampton County Prison from Allentown State Hospital, where he has been under examination since his arrest in September of last year on a charge of aggravated assault and battery.

Sometimes the future looks black; we can't see a glimmer of light anywhere . . . and we ask for help without really expecting an answer. But we're wrong. Even that small word, "help" means that we have realized our own inadequacy and turned to Something outside ourselves for guidance.

Called, or not called, "God is an ever-present help in trouble." And whenever we ask Him to intervene, our lives are filled with new hope and inspiration.

He does not ask us to worry about the future. In fact, He doesn't intend us to worry at all. Worry indicates uncertainty and fear, and these have no place in Christian living.

Perhaps you are thinking "That takes greater faith than I'll ever have!" But you forget God's help. Perfect trust . . . serene peace of mind . . . these are your birthright. And your Church will teach you to attain them.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL — ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

About the only subject in the world on which I feel qualified to defend my opinion is that of English grammar; and even they are honored more in the breach than in the observance. Yet I hold forth on sports, music and paintings as glibly as if I knew whereof I spoke.

This is because, like the ubiquitous Kilroy, I seem to have been always there. Sometimes in the interest of my work; but mostly for my own personal enjoyment. Happily, the assignment to cover the Waring Workshop concert combined the two.

Dragging chairs and the river contingent, now increased by two teenage friends of a teenage nephew, behind me, we all went. So did a few thousand other people despite the rain which was falling at 7 o'clock. The ground was damp but the moon made a nimbus around the clouds, and I enjoyed it as thoroughly as the Philadelphia orchestra.

My tastes may not be discriminating but they are broad enough to cover a variety of musical experiences, so I can get chills from the spirituals, choke up on the patriotic numbers, and sentimental over old dance tunes as easily as I can be inspired by the classics. Maybe more.

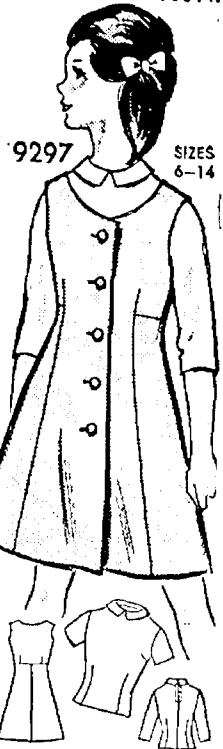

The same holds true of my quick look at the Outdoor Art Show yesterday. Although I could see the justice of one devastating remark I overheard from a sidewalk critic, "If you had a jag saw, some of these would make wonderful puzzles." I still found plenty to enjoy, and quite a lot to admire.

In this I was backed up by more competent opinions. The Wheeler for instance found in some of the water colors and oils, paintings which could hold their own in any art show in Rome or Belgrade. Henry Peltier, of the Pocono Art Center, also thought it was marvelous and compared favorably with many of the big city shows he had seen.

I was particularly impressed with some of the water colors of Pressor and the work of two young men whose paintings were propped up against the Monroe St. side of Dr. Tom Metzger's office and some oils in front of the Doughboy by the time I got back to check on the names, they had packed up after the sudden shower.

And here at least, artists and I share a common experience. A shower on wash day when the clothes are almost, but not quite dry, can be quite as discouraging.

Bangor — A rummage and bake sale was arranged by the Daughters of Zion Class of the Salem E.U.B. Church during the meeting at the residence of the president, Mrs. Clara Timmons, Tuesday night.

The event will be held Sept. 24 and 25 with the baked goods available on the latter date.

Plans also were made for the September meeting. At this time the sunshine group, captained by Mrs. William Roberts, will entertain the rain group, captained by Mrs. Irene Cantin.

Mrs. Estella Seiple and Mrs. Timmons were the devotional leaders. Various members gave readings. Mrs. Mary Hancock received the attendance prize. There were ten present.

Gleaners Give $50 For Kitchen

Bangor — A covered dish supper was held by the Gleaners Class of the First Methodist Church at the summer home of Mrs. Sarah Cann, Foul Rift, Tuesday evening.

During the business meeting that followed, with Mrs. Margaret Miller, president, presiding, a contribution of $50 to the church's kitchen fund was approved. Tentative plans also were made to have a party supper feature next month's gathering at the church.

Miss Olive Blake, Mrs. Ruth Keat, Mrs. Elsie Baskwill, Mrs. Elizabeth Roberts, Mrs. Bertha Everly, Mrs. Florence Mitchell and Mrs. Eleanor Davis were the other members present.

Among the guests were Rev. Guy Everly and daughter Mrs. Betty Jean Gaskill and the latter's children, Diana and David; Mrs. Amelia Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Delroy Smith and children Lisa and Marsha, and Messrs. Donald Keat, William Baskwill Sr., Ellis Roberts and Robert Davis.

Sixty Children Take Part In Parade

East Stroudsburg — Some 60 girls and their dolls took part in the annual Doll Parade this week at the East Stroudsburg Playgrounds with Mrs. Ed Travis, Mrs. Horace Walters and Mrs. John Sisco serving as judges.

The parade was supervised by playground personnel, Miss Linda Hough and John Sisco. There were floats, special decorations and special wardrobes.

A fresh fruit salad looks attractive if the fruit is left in large pieces: pared cantaloupe rings, watermelon wedges, whole strawberries, apricot and peach halves make a fine combination.

Mrs. Schmidt Leads Discussion At Class Meeting

Stroudsburg — Mrs. Almina Schmidt taught the lesson at the meeting of Mrs. Robert B. Smith's Sunday school class of St. John's Lutheran Church at their meeting this week at the former parsonage.

She based her talk on "Government in Bible Times." Fun minutes were read by Lucy Eilenberger and there was a discussion on the lesson and a Bible quiz.

There were 15 members present with Mrs. Ethel Yost winning the attendance prize. Hostesses were Mrs. Alice Shupp, Mrs. Naomi Fetherman, Mrs. Ethel Yost, Mrs. Rachael Price and Mrs. Frances Harnett.

Church Festival Today

Henryville — The Pocono Union Church will hold a lawn festival and bazaar today beginning at 2 p. m. and continuing until dark. The public is invited with proceeds going to the Pocono Union expense fund.

Frozen fruit salads are usually made with a base of cream cheese and mayonnaise; they should be frozen until firm and served right away or the fruit will become too hard.

In Leading Role At Ross Common

Saylorsburg — Aletha Custer Bacon, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Custer of Saylorsburg, will play the role of Daisy in "To and Behold", a family comedy to be given at Ross Common Playhouse.

The John Patrick hit play will be presented for nine performances, beginning Aug. 26 through 29 and again Sept. 2 through 6 to 8.30 p. m.

An accomplished piano teacher, soloist and actress, Miss Bacon also played a double role in "East Lynne" earlier in the season, also under the direction of Robert L. Hansen.

Miss Bacon is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Bacon of Wind Gap.

Grange Lecturer Speaker At Eckhart Reunion

Saylorsburg — Arthur W. Christman of Bowmanstown, lecturer of the Pennsylvania State Grange, was the guest speaker at the 35th reunion of the Eckhart-Eckert family held recently at the West End Fairgrounds, Gilbert.

Officers were re-elected for the coming year: Delbert Eckhart, Bowmanstown, president; Wilbert Zacharias, Lehighton, vice president; Mrs. Allen Hawk, Saylorsburg, secretary; Mrs. Ella Mae Moyer, Palmerston, treasurer; Mrs. Lamar Handwerks, Reading, historian; Mrs. Burton George, Palmerston, assistant historian.

The executive committee includes Alvin Eckhart, Bowmanstown; Floyd Eckhart, Allentown; William Reinhold, Summit Hill; Clarence Bollinger, of Palmerston; and Richard Kresge, Kunkletown.

Prizes were awarded to Mrs. Claude George, Palmerston, 75, oldest lady; Howard Eckhart, Palmerston, 79, oldest man; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Eckhart, Palmerston, married 51 years; Carl Albert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Eckhart, five weeks, youngest child; Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon Bollinger and family of 8 of Lehighton, largest family; and Mr. and Mrs. Renald Moyer, Palmerston, most recently married, five months.

A band concert by the Kresge Variety Band, Lehighton, followed the program.

Pocono Chorus To Sing At Masonic Temple

Stroudsburg — The Pocono Community Chorus under the direction of Mrs. Harold E. Treible, has been engaged by the Keystone Consistory of Scranton to do a show at the Masonic Temple on Sept. 19.

An original script is being prepared by Sally Ferrebee. Soloists will be Jean Ann Wolbert, Ruth Sibley, Robert Kranendonk and Robert Wolbert. Accompanist will be Mrs. Richard Seip.

Extra rehearsals are being held starting Aug. 31 and Sept. 3 with rehearsals continuing every Monday and Wednesday until further notice.

If you want that chicken fricasse to taste extra good, thicken the chicken stock and then add heavy cream and an egg yolk; cook gently without boiling after the cream and yolk are added.

Enders-Gravel Rites Unite Barrett Alumni In Boston

Cambridge, Mass.—Miss Kathleen M. Gravel, a former resident of Barrett, and Jerry J. Enders, Jr., were married in Boston, Mass., on Aug. 14.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold R. Gravel, now of 28 Fernald Drive, Cambridge, Mass. Mr. Enders is the son of Major and Mrs. Jerry J. Enders, of Fort Lewis, Wash.

They both were graduated from Barrett Twp. High School in 1901. Mrs. Enders was graduated from the Berkeley School in East Orange, N. J. in 1902 and is employed as a secretary at the International Marketing Institute in Cambridge.

Mr. Enders is a summer employee of the Space Radio Project at Harvard University.

At the end of August, the Enders will move to Washington where Mr. Enders will resume his studies at Olympic College in Bremerton.

Little Miss Pageant Sets Talent Goal

East Stroudsburg — A talent routine will be part of the judging points in the selection of Little Miss Pocono Mountains of 1965. In routines of three minutes or less, the youngsters may demonstrate their talent in singing, dancing, painting, drawing, playing musical instruments or any of the fine arts.

Entrants will also be judged in a party-type dress, preferably short, of any color.

The second annual contest for Little Miss Pocono will be held Friday night, Oct. 2 in the auditorium of East Stroudsburg High School. Sponsored by the Burnley Sheltered Workshop for the Handicapped, Dr. James Reed, president of the workshop, is chairman of the contest. Proceeds will benefit the workshop.

In keeping with the age of the contestants, David Burris, ten-year-old Stroudsburg musician, will provide organ music for the pageant. The current titleholder, Cheryl Chase, will crown the new queen.

Contestants in the Little Miss Pocono contest must be between 5 and 10 years of age. To enter the contest, parents are asked to send two black and white photographs, wallet size, head and shoulders, to Mrs. Robert Miller, director, 906 Main St., Stroudsburg.

The following information should accompany the photographs: child's name and age, birthday, color of hair and eyes, talent, name of school and grade and the parent's signature, address and telephone number.

Host At Canasta

Mt. Pocono — Miss Mabel Storm entertained her canasta club at her home on Kinney Ave. recently. Her guests were Mrs. Matthew Curran, Mrs. Charles Whitlow, Mrs. Bruno Parth, Mrs. Loreta Reap, Mrs. J. Harold Slegner, Mrs. Andrew McGinley and Mrs. A. J. Viassak.

Program In Middle Years Can Fill The Later Years

By Roberta Roesch

When we reach that last chapter of our life, there are five "sit-arounds-and-waits" we definitely don't want to do.

1. Sit around and wait for busy people to slow down.

2. Sit around and wait for someone else to entertain us and help us fill an endless hour.

3. Sit around and wait for naptime, mealtime or time to go to bed because there's nothing better to do.

4. Sit around and wait for letters, phone calls and visits from our children.

5. Sit around and feel sorry for ourselves when the letters, phone calls and visits don't come — because our children are busy.

We have seen these things happen, however, to women who don't prepare by reaching for opportunities when they're in their middle years. And, when we see them happening, we fervently hope again we won't be a woman in later life who merely sits and waits!

Sow The Seeds

But hoping and wishing aren't enough in anybody's world. Instead, we have to sow the seeds that grow into a hedge against the lonely uselessness that comes with nothing to do.

We can do this, though, if while we're in our 40s, we make the effort to plant some seeds to blossom in later years.

Here are some to plant.

First, list the things you can do well or learn to do well. Then narrow the list to projects that you could do as a job right now, then later work on to a degree during your years of diminishing youth.

Just as one example, think of social work. With this as a goal, you can train for and enter a field that has a real need right now. Then later you can taper off from a full-time to part-time job and then continue with volunteer work in the field for the rest of your life.

Second, get into the habit of doing things instead of waiting for things to do for you. When you get this habit strong, you'll be sitting and waiting in your later years.

Third, feed your mind. The more you feed it the more active it will stay. And the more active it stays the more you'll be in mid-stream instead of on the edge.

Fourth, at 40 make yourself start looking ahead with excitement to the opportunities of the future instead of settling down to the idea that it's time to sit down and settle down.

Interest And Effort

All it takes is some interest and some effort to participate in what's going on around you. Anybody can do it.

One Living Only For Letters Is Hurt As Postman Goes By.

In fact one grandmother we knew in our teens — and these were the days when flying was still in its barnstorming stages — took so much interest in the future that she left her daughter and granddaughter on the sidelines while she became the first in her family to fly in an airplane.

If you would like to receive a pamphlet on pointers to finding your basic interest, send me your request and a stamped, self-addressed envelope in care of this newspaper.

HAM LOAF with Chutney Sauce can be served hot or cold to match the weather has a sweet and spicy flavor that makes it just right for a summer meal.

New Products And Recipes To Perk Up Summer Menues

By Linda Pipher

Daily Record Home Economist

Stroudsburg—Under the New products section of one of the women's magazines I was reading last night, I was happy to learn that a sugar company has put granulated brown sugar on the market. That really is good news! It pours from a spout and will eliminate chiseling a rock of brown sugar when you just want a tablespoon or two. I haven't seen it yet, but intend to look for it the next time I'm at the store.

Have you tried the new vegetable and celery gelatin that has been out this summer? It's nice for vegetable salads and has many possibilities for new flavors of gelatin salads. I used the celery this week and combined it with shredded cabbage, grated carrot and minced onion with a teaspoon of vinegar.

This cool August weather has probably given you the urge to do more summer cooking than usual, and you must admit it doesn't heat the kitchen too much when using the oven. I'll bet you'll like this ham loaf recipe with chutney sauce, and if it suddenly gets hot again, it's just as good cold.

Ham Loaf With Chutney Sauce

1 1/2 cups small soft white bread crumbs
2 1/2 cup milk
1 pound ground pork
1 pound ground smoked ham
1 1/2 cup chopped onion

1 cup light corn syrup
1/2 cup brown sugar
1/2 cup drained sweet pickle relish
1/2 cup seedless raisins
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
Combine all ingredients in saucepan. Bring to a boil; boil 1 minute. Serve hot or cold with ham loaf. Yields 8 servings.

With the ham loaf, I served corn on the cob and fried eggplant, a favorite of ours. Pare eggplant, slice in half inch slices, dip in a mixture of an egg beaten with 1 tablespoon water, and then coat with bread crumbs. Fry in an electric skillet at 350 degrees until golden brown on both sides using bacon grease as the fat.

If you're looking for something different to try, make this Chili Pie — the children will love it.

Upside Down Chili Pie

1 tablespoon shortening
1 pound ground beef
1/2 cup chopped onion
1 cup cooked kidney beans
1/2 teaspoon chili powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon Worcestershire Sauce

1 cup cooked tomatoes
Brown meat and onion in melted shortening. Add beans, seasonings, and tomatoes. Cover. Simmer gently about 15 minutes. Pour into a deep 9 inch pie plate rubbed with shortening. Top with Cornbread.

1 1/2 cup melted shortening
1 cup sifted flour
1 teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons baking powder

2 tablespoons sugar
1 1/2 cups corn meal
1 1/4 cups milk
2 eggs

Sift flour, salt, baking powder, and sugar together. Add corn meal. Add milk and melted shortening to beaten eggs. Pour over dry ingredients. Beat until smooth. Spoon batter on top of hamburger mixture. Bake in a hot 350 degree oven for 20 minutes. To serve, cut into pie-shaped pieces.

Here's a good supper dish that's easy to prepare. I used an electric skillet, but it could be cooked in a covered skillet on the range. If you like the Oriental flavor, you'll like this, and it makes a nice luncheon dish for the girls, too!

Beef Oriental

1 beef arm steak or round steak, cut 3/4 inch thick
3 tablespoons shortening
1/2 cup water
1/2 cup soy sauce
1/2 teaspoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon pepper
3 tomatoes, peeled and cut into wedges

3 green onions, cut into 1/2 inch pieces
1 medium green pepper, cut into strips or squares
Cooked rice

Cut meat into 1/2x3 inch strips and brown in hot or dripping. Pour off drippings. Add water, soy sauce, sugar and pepper. Cover tightly and cook slowly 1 1/2 hours or until tender. Add tomatoes, onions and green pepper. Continue cooking 10 to 15 minutes, or until green pepper and onion are tender. Serve with rice. Yields 4 servings.

Washington Report

Social Security: The Sweet And The Sour

William B. Dickinson, Jr.
WASHINGTON — Social Security Sweeteners have become an established feature of Congressional sessions in election years, and 1964 is no exception. With a rare bi-partisan consensus usually seen only in national emergencies, Congress is attempting to supply an answer to the voters' query, "What have you done for me, lately?" Only eight representatives voted against expanding benefits when this year's measure came before the House on July 29, while 388 turned out to put themselves on record in favor of the aged and widowed.

The Social Security system, which marked its 29th anniversary on Aug. 14, has been amended in every election year since 1946, and in one off-year, 1961. Benefits have been raised, coverage expanded to take in more people, retirement ages lowered, and disability benefits added to the program.

But there has been no increase in benefits under the old-age insurance, or retirement plan, since 1968. The 1964 legislation would remedy that omission by providing a five per cent benefit increase designed to help offset a seven per cent increase in the cost of living since 1958. A retired worker and his wife who now receive the maximum benefit of $190.60 a month would get $200.10; the maximum amount payable to a family already on the survivor rolls would jump from the present $254.10 to $281.20. Maximum benefits would go higher for persons coming on the rolls in future years.

While much attention has been directed to the increased benefits, little notice has been called to the higher tax to be levied on the 75 million Americans now paying into the system. Under present law, the tax applies to the first $4,800 of a worker's earnings. The pending bill would raise the maximum base to $5,400 and would affect the tax schedule as follows:

Year	Rate	Maximum
1965	3.625	$174.00
1966-67	4.125	188.00
1968-70	4.625	222.00
1971 on	4.625	222.00

Year	Rate	Maximum
1965	4.8	$205.20
1966-67	4.8	216.00
1968-70	4.5	243.00
1971 on	4.8	250.20

The employer must pay an identical sum. Thus, by 1971 the combined tax will amount to 9.6 per cent of payrolls for each $5,400 employee. This is perilously close to the theoretical 10 per cent "ceiling" above which it is said rates cannot be raised without risk of a political backlash from wage earners and employers. The tax began in 1935 at only 1 per cent each for employer and employee on the first $3,000 of annual earnings. A look at the coming tax rises has made Congress reluctant to authorize any major innovations in the system, such as financing medical care for the elderly through still higher Social Security taxes. Yet it can be argued that people are willing to pay more to assure medical benefits for their aged relatives now and for themselves later. It's hard to see how such a popular piece of legislation can be frozen to the status quo in the coming years, especially election years.

Tobyhanna Lions To Aid Blind

NEWFOUNDLAND — The Tobyhanna Lions Club will work for the blind to benefit from the sale of tickets for the Wednesday, August 26, showing of "South Pacific" at the Newfoundland Musical Theatre, according to Arthur Frey, South Sterling, chairman of the committee for the benefit performance.

Funds realized from the sale of tickets next week will go to underwrite the many areas of work among the blind, such as sending men to summer camp (eight went this season); purchasing glasses for those without funds; and research in diseases of the eye.

Local Lions serving on the committee for the project are Fred Miller, South Sterling; Albert Oberly and Emil Schoenagel, Greentown; Jack Nelwein and George Newell, La-Anna; and the Rev. Dr. Frederick Fulmer and J. David Holdern, Newfoundland.

Tickets for the show, which begins at 8:30 p.m., may be obtained from these men or at the following "stations" set up by the Lions: White Beauty View Resort, Lake Wallenpaupack; Cron Electric and Gilpin's Pharmacy, Newfoundland.

The club recently completed a project in which they collected 1,800 stamp books with which a station wagon was purchased for the Lions-supported camp.

The first foreign language paper in the colonies was the "Philadelphia Zeitung" published by Benjamin Franklin in 1732.
